Photocopies of Materials needed for Classes 1 and 2 are now available on the shelves just inside the VH-314 suite. Please read the materials for each class prior to coming to class. Also available on the shelves are the course syllabus (which is the same as is posted on the website), and two background papers (one a lecture by Martti Koskenniemi, the other extracts on “History and Theory of International Law” from Malcolm Evans (ed), International Law.) These background papers are useful to read in the first few weeks of the course, but it is not necessary to read them before the first class. The course book, by Richard Tuck, may be purchased from the bookstore.

Note that we will not be using Blackboard in this class. The course website may be found at: http://www.law.nyu.edu/kingsburyb/fall06/theory_intllaw/index.html.
Course requirements (methods of assessments, due dates for papers etc) are detailed there.
